Introduction

Welcome to YALSA's new teen initiative, TeenTober!

TeenTober is a new, nationwide celebration hosted by libraries every October. It aims to celebrate teens and promote year-round teen services and literacies. Through the celebration, libraries can highlight the innovative ways it helps teens learn new skills and fuel their passions in and outside the library. TeenTober replaces YALSA's previous Teen Read Week™ and Teen Tech Week™ celebrations, allowing libraries the flexibility to choose what to celebrate (digital literacy, reading, technology, writing, etc) and the length of time for each celebration.

Library staff are encouraged to utilize this new celebration to advocate for and raise awareness of the importance of year-round teen services in libraries. In June, YALSA held a naming contest that allowed teens from all over to submit name suggestions for the new celebration. The names were then vetted by a task force and a shortlist was shared with the public and put to a vote. TeenTober was voted as the winning name.

In this toolkit, you will find all you need to successfully start your first TeenTober. There is a press kit with samples for press releases, social media posts, and community partner letters. Also included is a checklist/timeline you can follow, to ensure you are able to plan a successful celebration and advocacy tools to help you discuss libraries and their services to teens, as well as sample programming ideas that you can implement and adapt. Finally, there are evaluation forms not only for library staff, but for feedback directly from the teens you serve.

If you have any questions, comments, or feedback, we want to hear it! Please do not hesitate to reach to us at yalsa@ala.org.

Timelines and Checklists

Get Started

June/July (12-14 weeks ahead of TeenTober)

LOGISTICS

- Set a budget. Reach out to potential partners who may be willing to sponsor parts of your celebration.

- Watch YALSA webinars (to come) and assess possible programs/activities from the toolkit.
- Plan specific events and set dates and times.
- Partner with local organizations or program providers to maximize resources. Set a meeting or conference call schedule. Draw up a list of responsibilities and deadlines.
- Reach out to staff/volunteers you may need for your event. Think about photography, supplies, decorations, and entertainment. If you are booking outside presenters, book them as early as possible.
- If you have other members of your team working on the celebration, meet together and assign jobs.

MEDIA & PROMOTION

- Draft and distribute a calendar announcement/press release to newspaper calendar sections, as well as local television and radio calendar editors.
- Send out graphics and promotional materials to local partners.

MATERIALS

- Outline your event programs.
- If you don't already have materials about your library's teen program, develop a program fact sheet.

Next Steps

August (8 weeks ahead of your event)

LOGISTICS

- Reconfirm with staff/volunteers on what you need for celebration events.

MEDIA & PROMOTION

- Post signs and posters in public places.
- Notify teens who currently attend library, and promote in presentations to schools/community partners.
- Add information about the celebration to your library or school newsletter if you have one.

Home Stretch

September (4 weeks before celebration)

LOGISTICS

- Connect with any guest presenters or partners for events to ensure that you're on the same page.
- Prep any crafts or technology events that you have planned.

- Prep any displays/passive programs that you have planned.

MEDIA & PROMOTION

- Post on library social media about events/celebration.
- Post adverts before the celebration month begins, during, and post photos as a wrap-up at the end.
- Email your teen/parent mailing list to remind them of the events coming up.

MATERIALS

- Make sure to pick up any materials needed for the celebration (ideally with more than a week to spare for non-consumable items)

Advocacy Tools

TeenTober aims to raise awareness of the importance of year-round teen services and connect teens with services and materials provided by their local institutions that will help them develop new skills and fuel their passions. YALSA, American Association of School Libraries (AASL), and the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) have a number of supporting materials on the importance of libraries to teens. Check out the below resources to help you put together talking points applicable to your library. A good place to start is the issue briefs, brochures, and infographic.

If you're looking for more information on advocacy for staff supporting teens in libraries, check out YALSA's Advocacy webpage for a Advocacy Toolkit with some great Talking Points located on pages 22 and 23.

Remember that you alone don't have to do the talking! Chat with the teens you work for and with and ask them if they would be willing to share their stories about the library, and advocate for the library themselves! My name is, and I'm [insert age here] and I wanted to let other teens know about the great resource we have in town and at school for free entertainment: the library. I use the [insert library name here] for more than my homework and school projects. They have cool programs like [insert name of event you've been to here] and they're free. The other thing I like about the library is that they have all kinds of stuff to read like magazines, stories, graphic novels, manga, and more. My favorite book from the library is [insert title of book here]. Even if you don't like to read, I bet if you look hard enough in the library, you'll find something good. For instance, my library also has computers I can use for homework, to keep in touch with my friends and family and to play games and relax.

My library mentor, [insert name here] says that this October marks the first annual TeenTober event to spotlight and raise awareness for teen services in libraries. I'd like to tell other teens who may not be using the library that they should definitely check it out. There is more to do here than they may think, and there are people here who can help you get your questions answered.

I am really looking forward to [insert name of program during TeenTober here], but there are many more to check out take a look here [insert hyperlink to webpage/webcalendar or add physical attachment with programs], I suggest you check one out too!

Sincerely,

Sample Program and Display Ideas

Passive Programs:

Post-It Programming

- Description: This crowdsourced challenge asks teens to collaborate on a coding project without the use of a computer. As the code evolves, teens can see how fundamentals of coding, like order of operations, and teamwork matter. This program is adaptable to accommodate community-driven objectives depending on the teens' level of engagement and literacy.
- Setup: Ask your TAB (teen advisory board) or teen groups to set an objective using a popular coding language, like Python or Java. Ask the teens to write lines of code on Post-Its and place them on an unobstructed space. Once the program is complete, run the submitted code to see if the objective was met.
- Supplies: an unobstructed window or wall space, sticky notes, pens, computer with chosen coding language software, coding language books

- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Collaborative Problem-Solving), Community (Building Partnerships), Leadership (Teen Driven), Learning (College & Career Readiness, SEL), Literacies (Digital Literacy)

Piece it Together

- Description: Encourage problem solving, critical thinking, and teamwork with literary jigsaw puzzles. This program is particularly nice due to it's inclusive-friendly design (cross-generational, special needs populations, etc.).
- Setup: Purchase literary jigsaw puzzles, like these from Zazzle. Alternately, print literary designs or book covers and use a circuit machine to create your own. Library staff can choose titles to jigsaw as a way to promote certain parts of the collection, like manga or graphic novels.
- Supplies: table space, a selection of literary-based jigsaw puzzles
- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Diverse Population Interactions), Creativity (Collaborative Problem-Solving), Learning (SEL), Literacies (Library Resources)

Spine Poetry

- Description: Encourage teen creativity by designing poems using only the titles on book spines. This program offers shy or marginalized teens an alternate mode of expression.
- Setup: Any books will work for this as long as there is a wide selection. One suggestion is to choose books that have not recently circulated or overlooked formats as a way to draw attention to them.
- Supplies: books and 1-2 examples of poems
- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Self-Expression), Leadership (Amplifying Voices), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)

Nailed It/Failed It

- Description: Teens are encouraged to discover a new recipe in a cookbook from the library's catalog and share the results on social media. This program is designed for libraries without kitchens, but it can be easily transitioned into a standard program.
- Setup: Coordinate with the TAB to establish which hashtags you wish to use (e.g. library specific, YALSA) and encourage teens to tag their posts.
- Supplies: a selection of cookbooks, design or use an existing guide for social media etiquette and best practices
- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Digital Citizenship (Leveraging Technology, Learn and Use Digital Citizenship Skills), Leadership (Amplify Voices, Teen Expertise), Learning (Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)

Digital Storytelling

- Description: Teens are invited to share original works on their favorite social media platform and tag the library. This program is designed for teens interested in a variety of creative communications (e.g. animation, fan fiction, poetry, etc.).
- Setup: Coordinate with the TAB to establish the scope of the program and which hashtags you wish to use (e.g. library specific, YALSA), and encourage teens to tag their posts.
- Supplies: a selection of storycrafting books based on the scope of the program
- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Digital Citizenship (Leveraging Technology, Learn and Use Digital Citizenship Skills), Leadership (Amplify Voices, Teen Expertise), Learning (Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)

Programs:

Music Mix Masters

- Description: Help teens explore the world of music production through free online apps. This program is designed to encourage teens passionate about music to explore the intricacies involved in digital musicianship.
- Setup: If possible, invite a local musician to speak with the teens prior to the program about their experiences with digital musicianship. Open up a web browser on each computer to a web-based music program, like Looplabs. If the teens are interested, create a digital forum where the teens can listen to each other's samples and provide constructive feedback.
- Supplies: computer stations with internet connection, headphones, flash drives or cloud service, topical books
- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Building Partnerships, Diverse Population Interactions, Connect with Mentors), Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Digital Citizenship (Equitable Access, Leveraging Technology), Leadership (Amplify Voices), Learning (Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)

How to Selfie

- Description: Instruct teens on the tips and tricks to snapping the best versions of themselves. This program is designed to instruct teens not only on how to take a selfie, but how to evaluate whether a photo should be shared on social media.
- Setup: Library staff can either self-instruct, recruit a teen photographer practiced in taking photos (e.g. school newspaper), or hire a local photographer depending on budget. During the program, include a discussion about digital responsibility and when it is appropriate to share personal digital images. If possible, provide the teens with a digital forum to upload their before and after selfies to garner constructive feedback from their peers.
- Supplies: projection setup for instructor, camera or cell phone (teen brought), topical books

- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Building Partnerships, Connect with Mentors), Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Digital Citizenship (Leveraging Technology, Learn and Use Digital Citizenship Skills), Leadership (Amplify Voices, Reflective Risk-Taking, Teen Expertise), Learning (Year-Round Focus, Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)

Cleaning up the Digital Footprint

- Description: Guide teens towards best practices when sharing personal information online. This program is designed to instruct teens on how to navigate the digital world and keep their information secure.
- Setup: Libraries can either self-instruct or hire/recruit a local digital security specialist. Considerations to address can be educational, employment, and financial repercussions. Additional persons to potentially contact are employment agencies, high school career counselors, college recruiters, and local bank reps. Transition teens that attend this program into Digital Specialists that can assist other teens in cleaning up their digital footprint.
- Supplies: presentation, projection setup for instructor, topical books
- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Building Partnerships, Connect with Mentors), Digital Citizenship (Equitable Access, Leveraging Technology, Learn and Use Digital Citizenship Skills), Leadership (Teen Expertise), Learning (Year-Round Focus, Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, YPAR)

It Was First a Book

- Description: Select a teen book-inspired movie to screen for teens. This combination book club/movie screening reminds teens that stories can evolve depending on the voice and medium.
- Setup: Libraries can adapt this program to meet the population's interest and budget constraints. Hold a discussion after the film to talk about not only the differences between mediums, but also whether the director successful in conveying the author's vision (e.g. was it harder reading or watching Starr's experiences in The Hate U Give).
- Supplies: featured book, featured film, projection area, movie license
- Teen Services Outcomes: Learning (Teen Interests), Literacies (Critical Stance, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, Promoting Reflective Literature/Mediums)

Characters and Cosplay

- Description: Teens are invited to dress up as a character from their favorite book and roleplay them. This program is designed to provide teens a safe space in which to creatively embrace their favorite characters. This program can be also be paired with cosplay crafting program prior to this one.
- Setup: The scope of this program can be as simple as a cosplay party to a full blown convention. Connect with local seamstresses, costume designers, or SCA groups (Society for Creative Anachronism) groups to find instructors willing to teach teens how to develop their costumes. Ask your TAB for suggestions on preferred activities.

Suggestions include a themed party, a cosplay contest, or even an interactive book discussion.

- Supplies: themed food and decorations (ex. Alice in Wonderland's tea party), associated books
- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Community (Building Partnerships, Diverse Population Interactions, Connect with Mentors), Learning (SEL, Teen Interests), Leadership (Amplify Voices), Literacies (Library Resources, Critical Stance, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, Promoting Reflective Literature/Mediums)

Green Screen Book Blasts

- Description: Utilizing green screen technology, teens are encouraged to create their own 30-second book promos to share with their peers. These book reviews can be shared on the library's digital media platforms to further promote reading. This program is designed to both afford teens the opportunity to play with technology while offering peer-generated readers advisories.
- Setup: Select a location where traveling sound is minimal. The choice of chroma key software depends on your recording device, but "Do Ink" is a popular app to use on Apple products and "Chromavid" is a popular app to use on Android products. If you do not use an app on the recording device, there are several free Windows-based chroma key software choices available, but be wary of embedded watermarks.
- Supplies: video recording device (phone, tablet, web cam), green screen/sheet, good lighting, computer (optional)
- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Community (Diverse Population Interactions, Serving Teens), Digital Citizenship (Leveraging Technology), Learning (Year-Round Focus, Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Leadership (Amplify Voices, Model Continuous Learning, Teen Experts), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, Promoting Reflective Literature, YPAR)

Get Graphic

- Description: An instructional session for teens to learn how professional artists use technology to design artwork for graphic novels. This program is designed to encourage teens passionate about drawing or storycrafting to explore the intricacies involved in digital art creation.
- Setup: Libraries should choose a location with tables and chairs to allow for interactive participation. Instructors to run such programs can be found on web forums, like the Comic Book Legal Defense Fund's Comics Connector, or local art schools, like The Kubert School. This program can be adapted into a school or workforce development type program (e.g. learning how to design infographics). If the teens are interested, create a digital forum where the teens can upload digital copies of their work for peer-guided constructive feedback.
- Supplies: paper, pencils, additional supplies depending on artist's needs (projector, laptop, etc.)

- Teen Services Outcomes: Creativity (Authentic Content, Self-Expression), Community (Diverse Population Interactions, Serving Teens), Digital Citizenship (Leveraging Technology), Learning (Year-Round Focus, Teen Interests, Career Readiness), Leadership (Amplify Voices, Model Continuous Learning, Teen Experts), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, Promoting Reflective Literature, YPAR)

Displays:

Fact or Fiction

- Description: Teens are encouraged to evaluate the world around them with this interactive display. This display is designed for teens to demonstrate their critical evaluation skills of media posts and to build upon their existing knowledge through informative content.
- Setup: Invite TAB members to choose news articles to highlight for discussion. Display a collage of these articles on cork board and ask patrons to indicate with either green or red push buttons whether they think the articles are factual. Hang the IFLA poster nearby and provide a fact-checking resource guide listing authoritative websites, like FactCheck.org, Snopes.com, etc.
- Supplies: news articles, cork board, green & red push pins, IFLA poster, fact-checking resource guide, relevant reading materials.
- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Diverse Population Interactions), Creativity (Meaningful Content), Digital Citizenship (Learn and Use Digital Citizenship Skills), Leadership (Teen Expertise), Learning (Teen Interests), Literacies (Library Resources, Critical Stances, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, YPAR)

ARCheology

- Description: Teens are invited to dig into a collection of advanced reader copies and find the hidden gems. This display provides teens an opportunity to directly influence the library's collection by providing valuable feedback on upcoming titles.
- Setup: Design a book review form for the teens to grab and go. Include the details that you normally use for evaluating new additions to the collection. Display a collection of advanced reader copies for teens to 'dig into.' As an incentive, offer the teens a small amount of public service credit if they return the book review on the ARC and the option of keeping the ARC if they enjoyed it.
- Supplies: advanced reader copies, book review forms
- Teen Services Outcomes: Leadership (Amplify Voices, Teen Expertise), Learning (Teen Interests), Literacies (Library Resources, Critical Stances, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge, Promoting Reflective Literature)

The Power of Imagination

- Description: Display the power of creative engineering by designing an interactive Rube Goldberg machine. This display is designed to demonstrate to teens creative problem-solving can be fun.
- Setup: Coordinate with your TAB to create a rudimentary Rube Goldberg using miscellaneous supplies for the patrons to interact with. If possible, reach out to a local expert to run a session on structural engineering with the TAB. Examples of Rube Goldbergs can be found on Youtube and in the Teen Section of the 2017 Collaborative Summer Library Program. Display a collection of books on engineering and biographies about Rube Goldberg.
- Supplies: Rube Goldberg setup supplies, books about Rube Goldberg and engineering
- Teen Services Outcomes: Community (Building Partnerships, Connect with Mentors), Creativity (Self-Expression, Collaborative Problem-Solving), Leadership (Risk Taking, Teen Expertise), Learning (SEL, Career Readiness), Literacies (Library Resources, Affirm Multiple Forms of Knowledge)
